Introduction

Information technology and technology-enabled services continue to be central to the healthcare industry. With 60% of U.S. adults estimated to have a chronic disease and 40% of U.S. adults estimated to have two or more chronic diseases⁽¹⁾, providers and payors seek technology that supports better care coordination across the healthcare ecosystem to improve long-term disease management and better manage the cost associated with providing this care.

01 Capital Markets Update

Despite the downturn at the onset of COVID-19, the February and March 2020 market correction proved to be short-lived

- Equity markets quickly rebounded through the remainder of 2020 and peaked in January 2022
- Macro-economic issues (e.g., inflation, Ukraine conflict) have led to market declines since then
- Public HCIT companies outperformed the broader markets through February 2021, hitting its peak a year before the broader markets, mainly due to waning enthusiasm around telehealth and technology-enabled care
- Consistent with the broader markets, IPO activity in the first half of 2022 ground to a halt
- While private placement activity has slowed, 2022 could still end above levels achieved pre-COVID-19 with transactions addressing a broader scope of healthcare themes

02 M&A Markets Update

2021 was a record year for the M&A markets fueled by hopes of an improving economy, concerns around potential changes to capital gains treatment, and pent-up demand for deals put on hold at the onset of COVID-19

- While transaction volumes through July 2022 trail 2021, 2022 remains on-track to exceed pre-pandemic levels
- Sellers include a mix of financial sponsors, strategic divestitures, public, and private entities
- Financial sponsors and non-HCIT strategics so far have been the most active buyers this year
- Strategic HCIT companies are making more selective acquisitions
- While still important to care delivery, transactions focus less on virtual care and more on general healthcare themes (e.g., revenue cycle management, value-based care, advanced analytics)

HCIT M&A Activity

E Telehealth and technology-enabled care dominated headlines in 2020 and 2021. While remaining an important part of the care model, transactions like Amazon's acquisition of One Medical highlight the value of primary care as gatekeepers and that brick-and-mortar still matters in a blended virtual/in-person care model.

Introduction

Select Themes Impacting HCIT and Related Services

Shift to Ambulatory & Post-Acute Care

- Advances in medicine and technology have expanded the ability to perform traditionally inpatient procedures in the outpatient setting
- At the same time, aging of Baby Boomers is increasing the need for ambulatory and post-acute care typical to an aging population
- As a result, health systems are shifting services to the outpatient setting to control costs and respond to demand for services
- This has increased demand for solutions that better automate the outpatient and post-acute setting (e.g., Modernizing Medicine for physician services, or Therapy Brands and Qualifacts + Credible in behavioral health) as many of the larger players lack feature and functionality to be competitive
- Telehealth and tech-enabled care led the rise and fall in capital markets since the onset of COVID-19

COVID & the Acceleration of Virtual Care

- Providers guickly pivoted to telehealth and virtual care, enabled
- by both government and commercial payors loosening previously restrictive policies around reimbursement requirements
- ٠ Initial enthusiasm around telehealth and virtual care fueled a surge in private capital deployment, along with IPOs and SPACs
- While remaining an important part of the healthcare continuum, interest in virtual care has waned as legacy HCIT providers integrated telehealth into their solutions, providers added virtual capabilities, and returned to in-person care; slowing volume for pure- play telehealth companies

Shift to Value-based Care Models

- Reimbursement models continue to shift to outcome-based, valuebased care (VBC), linking value-based metrics such as health outcome and patient readmission rates in order to reduce rising healthcare costs by identifying at-risk patients and implementing suitable medical interventions
- To succeed in a VBC model, providers and payors are seeking advanced analytical capabilities (e.g., predictive analytics, artificial intelligence, and machine learning) to synthesize data from siloed platforms, such as EHRs and patient registries, to generate real-time, actionable insights that optimize care coordination and delivery across clinical and administrative functions

Funded Benefits

- Competition to recruit and retain talent has led employers to enhance benefits packages to differentiate themselves in attracting talent
- Employers also seek to control the cost associated with providing care to their employees
- · As a result, more businesses are choosing to self-fund and selfmanage employee health benefits
 - This increases the need for services to administer these plans and technology with advanced analytical capabilities to better manage the risk and costs associated with these plans

Capital Markets HCIT Capital Markets Update

Despite initial gains at the onset of COVID-19, HCIT has underperformed the broader markets, as measured by both the S&P 500 and broader healthcare services subsector

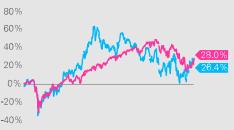

- The markets rallied to record highs throughout 2020 and 2021, reaching its peak on January 3, 2022, representing a 41.7% increase to where the S&P traded on February 19, 2020 (pre-COVID market high)
- Since January 3, 2022, the market has declined 13.9%, primarily due to geo-political concerns sparked by the war in the Ukraine, rising inflation, and underwhelming corporate earnings in the first half of 2022
- Publicly-traded HCIT & Tech-Enabled companies outperformed the market at the onset of the pandemic as the pandemic highlighted the value of virtual care and automation of healthcare
- Excitement waned in February of 2021 (about a year before the market • peak) with increasing saturation of the virtual care market leaving HCIT, on average, 6.7% below pre-COVID levels

Significant Deviation in HCIT Sub-Sector Performance

Telehealth & Tech-Enabled Care

- Led the rise and fall in performance since January 2020 as providers accelerated adoption of virtual care
- Competition in telehealth and a return to in-person care slowed revenue and increased patient acquisition cost
- Shares of pure-play telehealth companies including Teladoc Health and American Well have declined 56.0% and 83.1%, respectively, while companies offering blended virtual and in-person care are down 10.5% on average, suggesting the market favors a blended model

02 Provider Solutions

- The strongest of the HCIT sub-sectors, up 26.4% since the onset of the pandemic
- R1 RCM (up 92.6%), Omnicell (up 34.8%), Allscripts (up 61.2%), and Evolent Health (up 275.6%) leading the pack suggests investors remain excited about companies focused on core healthcare themes (e.g., clinical workflow, RCM, and value-based care)

03 Life Sciences & Others

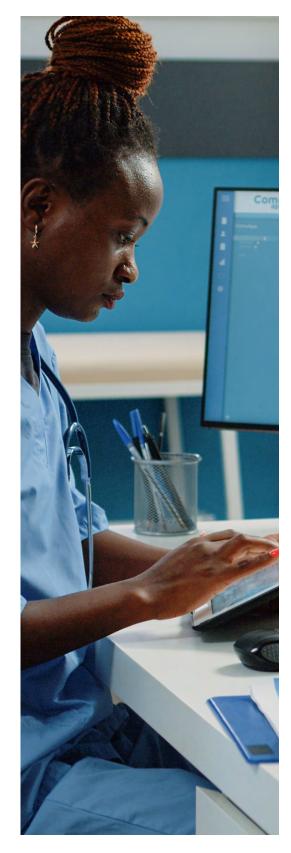

- The acceleration in pharmaceutical R&D has created tailwinds for pharma IT solutions providers
- Pressure to make "go" or "no go" decisions earlier in the development process due to more complex therapies and increased regulatory scrutiny have increased demand for technology to support the decision-making process

Payor & Benefit Solutions

- Overall, Payor & Benefit Solutions companies have traded down 57.7% below pre-COVID levels led by concerns around these companies' ability to contain costs
- These companies are particularly sensitive to issues such as increased interest rates, changes in employment levels, and changes in commuting trends resulting from the shift to hybrid and remote workforces

05 Consumer Health

- The smallest of KPMG's sub-sectors ($2.0B market cap), Consumer Health has declined 92.1% since January 2020
- Through the first half of 2022 Consumer Health has lost $3.9B in market cap, a 77% decline fueled by increasing competition among healthcare exchanges and its impact on customer retention

Capital Markets HCIT Public Valuation Benchmarks

Despite Stock Performance Trends, HCIT & Tech-Enabled-Services Trade at Higher Valuations

- While HCIT companies have underperformed in terms of stock performance, they trade at the highest valuations
- In comparison to other healthcare services companies, HCIT is second only to the Pharmaceutical / Contract Research Organization ("CRO") companies in terms of EV/Revenue and the highest trading multiple on an EV/EBITDA-basis
- Life Sciences and Consumer Health are clear high/low valuations for the HCIT sub-sectors, the remaining HCIT subsectors trade right around 3x revenue, albeit trading at a wider range of EBITDA multiples

Comparison of Current vs. Pre-COVID-19 Public Valuations

- For the most part, multiple expansion/contraction appears to correlate with the directional change in stock price performance, suggesting investor enthusiasm may play a greater role than financial performance on the performance of HCIT-related stocks
- A notable exception is the Life Sciences and Other Solutions companies, losing 0.9x revenue and 3.3x EBITDA since before the onset of the pandemic, indicating these companies are more profitable and being offset by lower multiples

Capital Markets IPO and SPAC Market Update

Momentum from the record year in 2021 for HCIT IPO and SPAC transactions has halted in 2022

- 2020 and 2021 included 20 IPOs ($10.1B raised) and 13 SPACs ($43.1B in market value added)
- Several have subsequently been or are in the process of being acquired (e.g., Convey and One Medical)
- · Decline in the capital markets most acutely impacted the IPO market with no HCIT IPOs YTD
- This will likely continue until either the markets rebound or companies accept the reality of current valuations
- While IPO and SPAC activity over the last two years added $53.2B in market value, this was more than offset by the $80.3B in market value exiting the market due to mega-deal acquisitions (e.g., Cerner, athenahealth) completed over the same time period
- DocGo and Privia Health are the only companies to enter the market since 2021 that trade above their IPO price

Capital Markets Private Placement Market Update

HCIT venture investments remain active in 2022

- In contrast to the IPO market, the private placement market appears more resilient in the first part of 2022
- While falling short of the record levels set in 2021, 2022 is on pace to be a good year in comparison to any prior year (2017 2020)-493 private placement transactions with an aggregate funding amount of $17.6B since the beginning of the year
- Telehealth and virtual care dominated the private financing markets in the 18 months following the onset of the pandemic while 2022 appears to favor companies addressing a broader scope of healthcare themes
- This includes a focus on pharma-services (e.g., Reify Health, DNA Nexus, and Alto), data & analytics (e.g., Biofourmis, Transcarent, Omada, Commure, Clarify, Boston Gene), interoperability, and practice management solutions

M&A Markets HCIT M&A Market Update

2021 was the year of the Megadeal

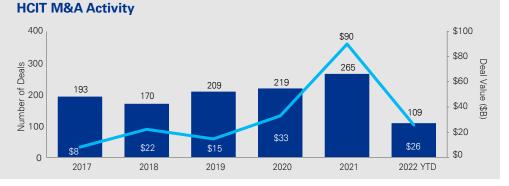

- Cerner Corporation's sale to Oracle Corporation ($30.2B), athenahealth's sale to Bain Capital and Hellman & Friedman ($17.0B), Inovalon Holdings' sale to Nordic Capital and Insight Partners ($7.4B), CIOX Health's sale to Datavant ($7.0B), and Change Healthcare to UnitedHealth ($13.6B – still under DOJ review) in aggregate represent $75.2B of transaction value
- In comparison, Livongo Health's sale to Teladoc Health ($19.1B) in 2020, Ensemble Health Partners' sale to Berkshire Partners and Warburg Pincus ($5.1B) in 2022, and Signify Health's sale to CVS ($7.8B) in 2022 are the only transactions above $5.0B in their respective years

Uptick in business carveouts over the past 12 months

- In March, Allscripts sold its legacy hospitals and physician practices business segment to N. Harris Computer Corporation for Allscripts to refocus its business on Veradigm and expand its pharma and health plan footprint
- In January, IBM's sold the data and analytics assets of its IBM Watson Health business to Francisco Partners

Increase in acquisitions by buyers outside of the HCIT universe

- CVS acquired Signify Health in September, increasing CVS's in-home care delivery
- In July, Amazon acquired One Medical to expand its presence in healthcare delivery
- In February, Stryker Corporation acquired Vocera Communications to expand its focus on remote communications

Continued focus on traditional healthcare themes in 2022

- In June, R1 RCM acquired Cloudmed to diversify its client base (Ascension accounted for 60% of revenue in 2021) and to increase its ability to offer an integrated solution with end-to- end revenue cycle management and technology-driven revenue intelligence capabilities
- In March, Warburg Pincus and Berkshire Partners acquired Ensemble Health Partners, a leading provider of technology-enabled RCM for health systems and physicians
- In June, WebMD Health Corporation acquired Mercury Healthcare to improve focus on consumer-physician engagement and clinical education
- The One Medical and Signify Health transactions emphasize the focus on primary care delivery under a blended virtual care model
- In June, TPG acquired Convey Health Solutions to support its ability to expand its technology-enabled solutions to government health plans
- In March, Thomas H. Lee Partners acquired Intelligent Medical Objects, a healthcare data enablement company and market leader in clinical terminology solutions
- The One Medical and Signify Health transactions emphasizes the focus on primary care delivery

$3.9 b In late health With On Imme Offers transit

Amazon acquires One Medical for $18 per share

- $3.9 billion transaction representing 3.6x 2022 revenue
- In late August, Amazon announced it will be shutting down Amazon Care and replacing their healthcare delivery platform with One Medical

With One Medical, Amazon immediately provides scale to the Amazon Care platform

- Immediately adds 180 primary care locations across 28 U.S. cities
- Offers the ability to integrate One Medical's patient virtual interface that supports seamless transition between the in-person and virtual care experience
- Emphasizes the value of primary care as the patient gatekeeper and value of a blended virtual / in-person care model (i.e., brick-and-mortar still matters)

M&A Markets Select Notable HCIT M&A Transactions

CVS acquires Signify Health for $30.50/share

The $7.8B transaction represents 9.3x revenue and 54.2x EBITDA. Signify Health focuses on the home health care segment, leveraging advanced analytics and technology to deliver value-based care with over 10,000 clinicians across all 50 states.

Deal rationale: Building upon CVS Health's existing retail footprint of pharmacies and MinuteClinics, Signify Health provides in-home health services (in-person and virtually) and managed services organization (MSO) capabilities that will accelerate CVS Health's valuebased care strategy.

Becton, Dickinson and Company ("BD") acquires MedKeeper

BD acquired MedKeeper from pharmaceutical manufacturer Grifols for $93M. MedKeeper is a cloud-based pharmacy management application that improves efficiencies and compliance by providing remote pharmacist review and approval.

Deal rationale: Medkeeper complements BD's existing portfolio, expanding solutions in compounding, logistics workflow, controlled substance management, and inventory optimization. BD is pursuing growth in high-technology pharmacy solutions, accelerating the company's commitment to "Smart, Connected Care" through customizable platforms to optimize IV workflow.

Amazon acquires One Medical for $18.00/share

The $3.9B transaction represents 3.6x revenue. One Medical is a subscription-based primary care physician practice with 180 locations across 28 U.S. cities, offering a blended care model including brick-and-mortar practices and virtual care. One Medical's patient virtual interface supports seamless transition between the in-person and virtual care experience.

Deal rationale: One Medical provides immediate scale for Amazon's primary care efforts. It offers a large primary care market for subsequent referrals to other medical specialties and healthcare services.

WebMD acquires Mercury Healthcare

Deal rationale: The transaction will strengthen WebMD's focus on consumer-physician engagement and clinical education as WebMD invests in empowering clients with data, content, tech-enabled resources, and services.

TPG Capital acquires Convey Health Solutions

TPG Capital acquired all outstanding shares of Convey Health Solutions Holdings (NYSE: CNVY) that it does not currently own for $10.50/share. The $1.1B transaction represents 3.1x revenue and 13.5x EBITDA. TPG acquired Convey, a tech-enabled solutions and advisory business focused on serving government sponsored health plans, from New Mountain Capital in 2019 and took it public in June 2021.

Deal rationale: TPG believes that, as a private company, Convey will have the flexibility to make investments in the company that best serves its customers.

Patient Square Capital acquires SOC Telemed

Patient Square Capital acquired SOC Telemed (NasdagGS:TLMD) for $3.00/share. The $348M transaction represents 4.3x revenue. SOC Telemed, an acute care telemedicine company, went public through a SPAC in 2020.

Deal rationale: Patient Square Capital believes that, as a private company, SOC Telemed will have the flexibility and resources to continue investing in its clinical capabilities, innovating its offering, and expanding its footprint.

Thomas H. Lee Partners acquires Intelligent Medical Objects

Thomas H. Lee Partners ("THL") acquired Intelligent Medical Objects ("IMO") from Warburg Pincus for an expected $1.5B, representing approximately 15x EBITDA. IMO is a healthcare data enablement company that develops and licenses medical terminology and healthcare IT software applications used by over 740,00 physicians. IMO's suite of software products help hospitals minimize clinician burnout, reduce costs and provide better services.

Deal rationale: "THL's investment in IMO validates the next stage of growth for our business, our products, and our employees," said Ann Barnes, IMO's CEO.

Ensemble is a leading provider of technology-enabled revenue cycle management solutions for health systems and physician groups.

Deal rationale: The acquisition will provide capital to invest in products, and technology expansion while pursuing market growth within the healthcare industry.

Berkshire Partners and Warburg Pincus acquire Ensemble Health Partners

N. Harris Computer Corporation (subsidiary of Constellation Software) acquires the net assets of Allscripts' Mar 02, 2022 Hospitals and Large Physician Practices business segment

The $700M transaction (0.8x LTM revenue and 4.8x LTM EBITDA) includes the assets from Allscript's legacy EHR businesses -Sunrise, Paragon, Allscripts TouchWorks, Allscripts Opal and dbMotion solutions.

Deal rationale: With the investment, Allscripts will focus on its other high growth segments - Practice Fusion, Professional and Veradigm. N. Harris owns more than 20 HCIT companies and the Allscripts acquisition is its largest healthcare investment to date.

GTCR acquires Experity

GTCR acquired a majority stake in Experity from Warburg Pincus for an expected $1.2B. Experity offers integrated EMR and practice management solutions designed for urgent care workflows and to improve clinic efficiency.

Deal rationale: GTCR plans to support the Experity management team as they continue to execute organic growth initiatives, new technology deployments, and add-on acquisitions of complementary software businesses.

Francisco Partners acquires healthcare data and analytics assets from IBM Watson Health business

Francisco Partners acquired assets of IBM Watson Health, the healthcare data and analytics business of IBM, for $1.1B. Rebranding these assets Merative, they include Health Insights, MarketScan, Clinical Development, Social Program Management, Micromedex, and imaging software offerings.

Deal rationale: IBM has been divesting assets as part of streamlining its portfolio. Francisco Partners plans to invest in Merative to help achieve the mission of bringing technology and expertise to clients across healthcare through data and analytics solutions.

R1 RCM acquires Cloudmed

R1 acquired Cloudmed from New Mountain Capital for $4.0B, representing 14.8x EBITDA. Cloudmed provides revenue intelligence solutions to analyze large volumes of data, to identify missed opportunities, and to reclaim lost revenue.

Deal rationale: Cloudmed provides diversification of R1's customer base, reducing R1's historical customer concentration with Ascension accounting for approximately 60% of R1's 2021 revenue. The transaction also allows R1 to increase its commercial capacity with its end-to-end revenue cycle management and technology-driven revenue intelligence capabilities to deliver a comprehensive solution.

Stryker acquires Vocera Communications

Stryker (NYSE: SYK) acquired Vocera Communications (NYSE: VCRA) for $79.25/share. The $3.3B transaction represents 13.2x Revenue. Vocera provides a digital care coordination and communication platrform.

Deal rationale: The acquisition will enhance Stryker's Advanced Digital Healthcare offerings with remote communications helping to reduce and to prevent adverse patient events across the care continuum.

Oracle Corporation acquires Cerner Corporation

Oracle Corporation (NYSE: ORCL) acquired Cerner Corporation (NasdagGS: CERN) for $95.00/share. The $30.2B transaction represents 5.1x revenue and 19.6x EBITDA.

Deal rationale: Oracle plans to organize Cerner as a dedicated Industry Business Unit and anchor asset to expand its cloud business in the healthcare markets.
